

Drifting and waiting

Waiting and drifting appeared in two decision making processes this week.

There is a situation where the need for a decision arises, but the group collectively drifts into sustaining the current state (waiting) and not gonna make that decision until it becomes unavoidable. This drifting can be conscious or subconscious. Consequently, certain decisions may be excluded.

